

SUMMERS TO LEAD WANDERERS TODAY

"Bird and Plant" Man Will Conduct
Party Through Upper Part of Oxon Run.

REMEMBER—

All who like to get out into the open are welcome to "hit the trail." The rendezvous is at the end of the Congress Heights car line. The leader is Ewing Summers, known to the wanderers as the "bird and plant man." The time is 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

All is in readiness for today's hike, the only excursion in the minds of the leading spirits of Washington's community outings being, "How many will take advantage of the opportunity for a fine walk through the woods?"

Several hundred persons have been present on each of the outings, and it is expected that a large crowd will "hit the trail" this afternoon.

The wanderers are to meet with Ewing Summers, "the bird and plant man," who is to act as leader, at the end of the Congress Heights car line, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. From this point Mr. Summers will conduct the party through the woods and fields of the middle section of Oxon run and through Barnabee branch. One of the previous hikes made under the leadership of Mr. Summers was through Oxon run, but in the lower section, not that portion which is to be traversed today.

The total length of the hike this afternoon will be about five miles, it is estimated. The time required to get to the starting point from the central part of the city is about forty minutes. Interest in the outings of the wanderers has shown a steady increase since the community outings were first suggested as an experiment several weeks ago. Many persons making the hikes have kept both in person and by letter, that the hikes be continued throughout the summer months. No definite plans have been outlined for the continuation of the outings, but it is considered quite likely that as long as interest continues in them—and there seems to be no doubt at present about that feature—the hikes will be made.

Those who are responsible for the idea of the community outings here are still taking an active interest in them. Mr. Summers already has in mind the route of the hike for next week, and it will be announced early enough to give the wanderers opportunity to indulge in a little pleasant anticipation.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS FOR BARTON MEMORIAL

Building at Glen Echo to Perpetuate Memory of Red Cross Founder.

A nation-wide campaign for funds to erect the $150,000 memorial building to Clara Barton at Glen Echo, which will be used chiefly as a training school for first-aid nurses, is now in progress.

Almost simultaneously with the first public announcement in The Star, that such a project was on foot, appeal was made for contributions at the grave of the famous Red Cross leader in Oxford, Mass., during memorial services.

Gen. W. H. Sears of Pentwater, Mich., who has been in Washington for several months organizing the effort, reviewed the life "work" of Clara Barton, calling attention to her humanitarian work on twenty battlefields. He summarized her labors into sixty-five great achievements as follows:

Clara Barton's Record.

"Organized free school at Bordentown, N. J.; first government woman clerk in Washington, D. C., before civil war; seventeen fields of battle and relief during our civil war; identified 13,000 Union dead at Andersonville; found 22,000 missing Union dead; delivered 300 lectures at $100 each; ten fields of battle and relief in Franco-German war; with the international committee of the Red Cross in Switzerland, Germany and France, 1863-71; secured admission of the United States to Red Cross treaty; author of the American amendment; organized first aid within the Red Cross; organized American National First Aid Association; administered relief on seventeen fields of national disaster; Cuban reconquero relief; Spanish-American war; Cuban orphan asylums; superintendent Massachusetts Reformatory for Criminal Women; represented the United States at five international Red Cross conferences; author of books, lectures and poems; conceived idea of a school where people shall be taught to keep the well in health."

Site at Glen Echo.

At the conclusion of his address Gen. Sears announced that a large block of land had been secured through the efforts of Mrs. Mabelle Rawson Hiron of Oxford, Mass., at Glen Echo, beside the old home where Clara Barton lived and died, on which is to be erected a memorial building to her memory, at a cost of about $150,000. There will be an assembly hall and committee rooms in this building, and space reserved for all the decorations, diplomas, flags, pictures, personal effects, etc., left by Clara Barton, for public exhibition.

Gen. Sears called upon the people of Oxford, Worcester county, and the state of Massachusetts, to help raise the money for the erection of this building. There was a quick response to this appeal and a Clara Barton memorial committee was organized with chairman, secretary and treasurer, and contributions were started on the spot, the plan being to canvass the whole country.

FINISHED MILLET'S PANELS.

Artist Will Be Paid by United States for Federal Building Work.

An echo of the Titanic disaster, involving the construction of the new post office building at Wheeling, W. Va., in the fate of the famous Washington artist, Frank Millet, one of the victims, sounds from the leaves of the record of decisions of the controller of the Treasury, C. Y. Turner of Washington, completed decorative panels for the building from designs made by Millet, and Controller Downey decides that he should be paid the amount of his bill, $17, although expense entailed was to have been borne by the citizens of Wheeling, by original agreement with Artist Millet.

Millet had a contract with the government for decorative work in connection with the building of the federal building. This was completed, and the artist paid. By arrangement with the citizens of Wheeling, and without cost to the government, Millet arranged to paint and to install them, the government consenting.

His death interrupted this work. The government awarded the contract to Turner, who completed and installed the panels from the Millet sketches. The supervising architect, one of the controller of the Treasury, indicated that the building was substantially complete and occupied, but that it would not be officially completed until certain work was done, including the panels contemplated in the plan. Occupation of a building, he indicated, by no means indicates completion.
